What Is Price Of Involvement?

By Clarence Wilson

With the Student Council elections just around the corner, much lip-service has been given to the claim that the administration has not given students a voice in OU affairs.

However, according to acting-president Kirk Naylor at his news briefing session yesterday, this is due for a change "if the students are willing to pay the price for involvement."

"I have said that I would be pleased to see the Student Council become more than an activity planning group, but, realizing the problems students face, the worst thing that could happen would be for them to get representation and then not show up," stated Naylor.

Naylor also said that he favored student representation on the University Senate committees. He also admitted that students as well as other groups are often overlooked when discussions of who ought to be involved in university planning are held.

"Students may be overlooked, but must be involved," Naylor said. He added, "However, I have had some horrible experiences of non-participation when students were given the opportunity."

He quickly added that generally he felt the students at OU were a responsible group.

Gateway Advisor Warren T. Francke and Fall Editor Clarence W. D. Wilson peruse sample copy of Campus Courier, which may appear semi-weekly in next fall's The Gateway.

Gateway To Be 'Leader' Says Fall Editor Wilson

Clarence Wilson, 21-year-old journalism major, will edit The Gateway in the fall. His editorship was announced Wednesday.

"I hope that The Gateway can have a stronger emphasis on features than it has in the past," said the future editor.

Clarence hopes to make The Gateway "a strong opinion leader on campus filled more with in-depth type coverage rather than straight reporting of the facts, although this is also necessary."

He has served four semesters on OU's student newspaper. Currently, Clarence is news editor.

"The journalism department at OU simply reeks with talent

The 1967 Tomahawk will be distributed for the last time today. Students desiring a yearbook must bring their activity cards to the first floor Student Center check room between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Art Auction Nets $3,583

Sunday, April 30, proved to be a profitable day for the OU Art Club.

The club collected $3,583 in their Annual Art Club Auction. Of this, 25 per cent will go toward the club's annual trip. The remaining 75 per cent goes to the prospective artists.

The auction held on the first floor of the student center drew an approximate crowd of 300 people. The auction opened at 1 p.m. with oral bidding on 33 objects. Of these, 26 were sold for a total of $575.

Various types of objects were up for sale from ceramics to conventional still-lives.

Student elections for Student Council and Ma-ie Day princess will be held next Wednesday in the Ben Gallagher Card Rm. Student Center. Election hours are 9 a.m. till 3 p.m. Activity cards are needed.

Voting This Wednesday; Election Totals Private

By Judy Bradley

The Student Council ruled at the Wednesday meeting to make the May 10 Student Council election totals available only to the candidates to save embarrassment for losing candidates, who receive a low total of votes.

Doug Slaughter proposed a constitutional amendment raising the number of representatives for Student Council from four to six per class to be voted on by the student body in the May 10 elections, and, if passed, to be effective in this election.

The proposal was defeated by a six to five vote.

The law states that the amendment would have to be publicized in The Gateway a week before it is voted on.

It was also felt that it wouldn't be fair to would-be candidates who would have entered the race if they had known they would have had more of a chance.

The Constitutional Revision Committee is working on the proposal for a future vote.

The council stuck by the traditional interpretation of eligibility. Accumulated hours and registered hours attempted this semester will count but not intended summer school plans. Those failing classes this semester will lose their eligibility.

Since some candidate's petitions weren't in by the noon deadline, Kathy Wybenga suggested petitions in the future be accepted all day May 3. No action was taken on the proposal but the late petitions were accepted.

Council President Jim Butler announced that the council will take action on all petitions for organizations' fund-raising projects for the fall at the May 17 meeting.

Princess Candidates To Wear New Robes

The traditional four candidates for Ma-ie Day Princess has been expanded to six this year.

Since there are only four ceremonial robes, six new ones are being purchased by the Student Council. The buckskin dress worn by the Princess is also up for repairs for loose beads and ripped leather.

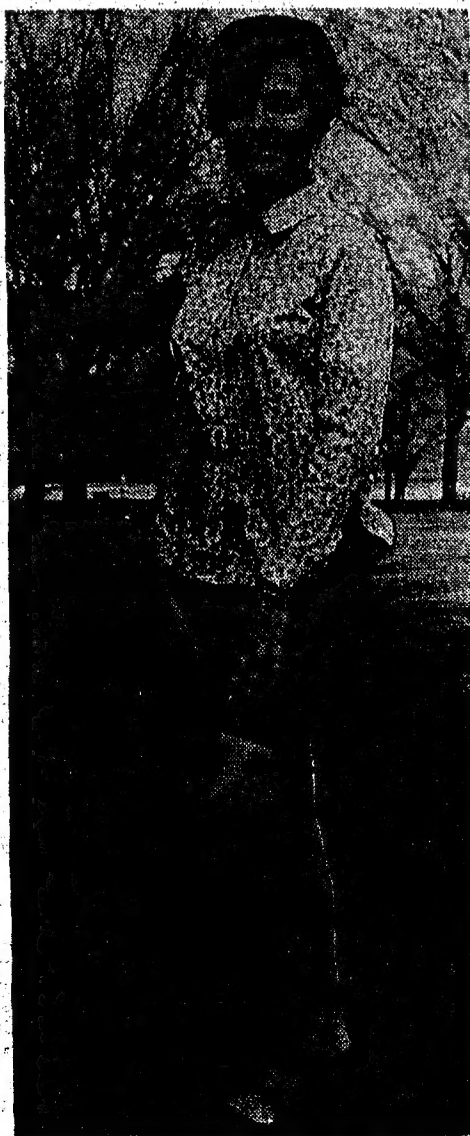

The candidates vying for the Princess title are Terri Pospichal, Chynne Koser, Diane Berry, Jackie Welborn, Dee Hurlburt and Nina Bieda.

Entertainment at the May 12 Ma-ie Day Dances will be provided by the Shadows of Knight, hired for $1,400 and, for $700 each, Del Shannon and Johnny and The Hurricanes.

A pancake breakfast at 8:30 a.m. will cost students 35¢ and 65¢ will be charged for a steak sandwich lunch served at 12:30 p.m. The actual cost is 75¢ per student for the breakfast and $1.50 each for the lunch. The Ma-ie Day Fund will pick up the difference.

Coed of the Week

Daring the winter winds to return is LaRae Koppit. The freshman Spanish major has earned a 4.0 grade average and membership in Alpha Lambda Delta honorary. Last fall LaRae was named typical Indianne. Recently she became a Chi O and an Angel.

Election Day Nears

Student elections day arrives with much fanfare next Wednesday.

The matters regarding the election need critical attention focused upon them. First there is the balloting itself.

Some candidates will not be permitted to vote for themselves. They fall into a twilight zone of not having enough hours to run in one class, yet have too many hours to vote in the class, in which they are forced to run as a result.

Certainly a candidate should have the option of voting for himself. Elections have been decided by one vote.

Then there is the matter of publishing election figures. The Student Council tossed this issue around two days ago. The council decided that it would "embarrass" the candidates if the number of ballots they received were published in The Gateway.

The issue of embarrassment is a poor one. Students shouldn't run for office if they aren't willing to pay "the price of involvement" as Dr. Kirk Naylor calls it.

College is supposed to provide educational experiences. Elections should be as similar to the "real" thing to be of any lasting value.

The Student Council has been charged with being merely a social planning group. A few of the candidates have even gone so far as to state that the social planning should be removed from the hands or committees of the council and be placed in the jurisdiction of the Student Center Group committees.

This appears to be a suggestion with merit. The people who support this add that it would then leave the Student Council free to become "a legislative body."

The question then is "legislate what?"

The many candidates claim that students needs are "many and varied." But again the greatest need seems to be that the students need a voice in those things which affect them.

and my biggest job will be to put that talent to good use," he said.

Tentatively his talented staff will consist of Robyn Carmichael, managing editor; Jaey Sedlacek, news editor; Susan Kruse, assistant to the editor; Judy Wilson, society editor and Phil Johnson, photographer. Other positions will be announced shortly.

Last Friday, Clarence turned 21. A special birthday present was a $200 scholarship awarded by the Omaha Press Club. The Walter Panko Scholarship will "aid my journalism education," Clarence said.

After college, Clarence looks forward to teaching journalism in a Nebraska high school.

Letters To The Editor

'The Truth Hurts,' Says Harangue Defender

Dear Sir:

Referring to the excellent article written by Mr. DeLine last week, I for one entirely agree with his support of the independents and of the Lone Harangue of Omaha University.

There are many complaints about the Lone Harangue being snide, but as far as I can see, the only complaint is from the Greeks. As the old saying goes, "The truth always hurts."

As for the complaint about the originator of the Lone Harangue not having the guts to sign his article, I feel there is no need. The writer is obviously a modest person who doesn't want to be hailed and worshipped for having enough intestinal fortitude to speak out against the highly privileged Greeks.

What we independents need is a little more backbone and a lot of organization. We could clean up the campus and maybe the University would have a chance for total success.

We independents need more brave intelligent leaders like Mr. DeLine and the Lone Harangue; but they too need support.

Mr. Robert Curry
 Michael Cain
 Jerry W. Wood
 Duane Kosmicki
 Michael L. Schinker

Platform No Excuse For Anti-Greek Plot

Dear Editor,

I would like to commend the authors of the "Lone Haranger" for a wonderfully comical look at the "antigreek" movement. While it is enlightening to see that OU students are interested in their university, I fail to see how this composite of "oral diarrhea" can attract the type of personnel needed for a "plot to overthrow the decadent Greek state on the hill."

While humor is a wonderful thing, recruitment by humor will get you nothing but apathetic, I'll-try-it-once-for-kicks members.

I'm sure the "Harangauthors" will read this letter and eagerly point to their platform. While their platform is basically good, the authors seem to be preoccupied with the presumption that all-Greek is bad. This underlying, invalid premise is as unexceptionable as saying all Negroes and Jews are bad.

Wouldn't it be nice to have an objective presentation of facts, instead of one cluttered with personal grievances, and satirical comments? Is your platform such that goal-attainment is impossible without these basic criteria?

For the "Haranguer" to be effective it must be objective enough to enlighten the student body, not amuse it. In this respect the authors "Preparation H" is about as effective as Chapstick!

Respectfully,
 Rod Scheer

Politics More Pressing Than Creativity?

Dear Editor:

How many students attend the plays, the one acts, the band-concerts, the art exhibits, and the dance concerts? A mere scattering!

Are Omaha University students so concerned with academic learning that they are indifferent to the cultural achievements of their fellow students? To be well-rounded students and individuals it is necessary to appreciate the expressions of others.

Is this appreciation not one of the major goals of higher education? I believe the "Independents-versus-Greeks" political war is not so pressing an issue as combating our complacency toward campus creativity!

Sincerely,
 Sue Bowen

Demagogues Demand Education Or Fun?

Dear Editor:

The time of "all school elections" is arriving shortly and provides cause for reflection on the current student political debate. Undergraduate demagogues are embroiled in controversy concerning: student "government," Maie Day princesses, "ACTION," school policies on attire, dances, and drinking; school spirit, the greek vs. non-greek "schism," and off-the-cuff remarks on the campus philosophical topic, "Sex and the Sorority Girl."

Does the high-school mentality of the O.U. demagogues demand excellence in education or to be provided with a dole of dances, movies, and fun? Are we selecting "leaders" who need a heavy-handed administration to keep tabs on them?

Might we stop for a moment, (as we cast our ballot affirming adolescent immaturity,) and wistfully consider the European university, which provides a place for discussion and research, and not a "student center" for the care, feeding, and pacification of the high school mentality?

Sincerely,
 Michael Hill

OU Squad Clash 7:30 at West Side

By Dan Parker
The University of Omaha spring gridders will change from sweat togs to full dress uniforms for tonight's annual intra-squad game at the Westside High Stadium.
Game time at the 87th and Pacific Street stadium is 7:30.
Head Coach Al Caniglia has divided the 50-man squad into two defensive and offensive units of nearly equal proportion in an effort to give the fans a good show.
Little All-America candidate Marlin Briscoe will quarterback the Red unit that features a flashy backfield. Gary Paporello, defensive standout last season, will start at flanker. Rick Davis will start at fullback, and Ron Sayers has the nod at running back.

Wyoming transfer Gary Peters, a 26-year old ex-marine, will call signals for the Whites. His backfield will include sophomore Steve Haborak at fullback, Pat Smagacz at running back, and Lloyd Williams at the flank.

The all-lettermen lineup for the Reds includes only one newcomer. Former Omaha North all-stater Stan Standifer will replace Gary LaFollete at tight end.

The White lineup boasts five rookies. Tom McKernan, Cincinnati U. transfer, will start at split end, and NU transfer Len Cararsky will go at tackle. Others are center Fernando Mesa, tight end Gary Neumann, and Peters.

Most performers, except key backfield personnel, will go both ways in the spring game. Coach Caniglia points out that the Indians will be without the services of several men who are out for baseball or other spring sports.

Injuries will halt the performance of tackle Ed Jackson and safety-flanker Doug DeFalco. Jackson aggravated an old knee injury in practice last week, and DeFalco is recovering from a torn cartilage in his knee.

WRA Banquet

The Women's Recreational Association will hold their annual WRA Sports banquet in the student center, May 16.

It's free to all women carrying six or more hours and a full time student who carries an activity card.

Thompson Leads Indian Golfers

The past week saw OU golfers add three wins, two losses and a tie to their season's record.

Playing at Highland Country Club OU beat Hastings 8½-6½ and tied Doane 7½.

Jim Thompson and Jim Garrett were low men both scoring 80.

Monday, amid snow flurries, OU outscored Creighton 8-7 and Washburn 9-6.

Low men for the three teams were OU's Jim Thompson, 77 and Ted Taylor, 79.

Jim Thompson scoring a 76 and Ted Taylor, 77 were again low men winning all their matches.

Diver Rides Air Cushion

By Kathy Piccolo
"Beat you to the ground," laughed an OU student as he opened the door of the Cessna 180, 7,200 feet above the ground. And he did, falling at a rate of 120-mph.
It was Lonnie Schaffroth, a 23-year-old Omaha skydiver.
Totalling 170 free falls in a year-and-a-half, Lonnie is a member of the Omaha Skydivers Club.
Now a pre-law student, Schaffroth first became interested in skydiving while stationed on an Air Force Base in France. The Verdun Club performed on the base.
"That's when I decided skydiving was for me."
Of the sport, Schaffroth says, "to me it feels like I'm lying on top of an invisible cushion. You have no sensation of falling."
In free fall skydivers move horizontally at a speed of 100 mph.
Lonnie is Safety and Training Officer of Omaha Skydivers, Inc. The club was initiated in 1960 by Stan Searles, a 1959 graduate of OU. With 1,200 jumps Stan is the only original member.

Today there are 33 members in the Club which averages 2,000 jumps a year. Approximately one-fourth of these members are pilots.
To qualify skydivers must be 21-years-old, pass a class III flying physical, pay a $75 initiation fee which includes the first six jumps, a log book and training manual.

Prior to jumping, students must complete a 40 hour ground school. It includes how to pack a chute, how to land, emergency procedure, free fall techniques, canopy control and related information.
Students pack their own chutes from the first jump.
"Since the start of the Club there have been seven malfunctions of chutes," explained Schaffroth. "Six or seven broken bones but no fatalities."
"It is actually not the chute that fails but the jumper himself," he continued. He improperly packs the chute or employs improper body position when jumping.
Weather permitting, Schaffroth and the other members of the Club are scheduled to perform on OU's campus for Maie Day.

Indians In CIC Tourney

By John Whisman

CIC conference championship playoff action is slated to begin this weekend.

The Indians have built up a 13-4 mark going into the playoffs at Topeka.

The high-flying base-batters have won their last seven, thanks to slick fielding, strong pitching and big batting in key situations.

In the championships, OU and Washburn must be the co-favorites. However, all the teams in the conference are tough.

Emporia State for instance has compiled a so-so 15-15 record previous to tourney action, but two of these wins were over Kansas State, holder of, third place in the Big Eight Conference.

Also the fact the Emporia State Hornets have played a total of 30 games gives them more experience than any team in the tourney. Emporia then becomes the darkhorse.

Last year in the Championships, the Indians breezed through first round action by dropping Washburn 6-5 and Emporia 13-10 the first day.

When the Championship was almost won, the Indians wilted and were beaten by Pittsburg St., 14-4 and then ousted by Washburn 5-4.

Pittsburg State went on to defeat Washburn in the title game.

Following a slow start, Coach Virgil Yelkin's crew has jelled and seems capable of snaring the title this year.

In the last six outings, a different pitcher has thrown the full seven innings, with Steve Kaas going nine against Rockhurst, allowing only four hits and no runs in a 1-0 victory.

Another rookie hurler, Dan Klepper, moved into the starting role, turned in a fine performance as the Indians beat Rockhurst 18-8 in the opener.

From the plate, the Indians as a team are hitting an impressive .281, which ranks tenth in the latest NAIA statistics.

Herb Johnson, who shares catching duties with Dale Lortz, leads the club with a .562 average.

Outfielder Bill Myers leads the regulars with 17 hits in 50 at bat for a .340 average.

Harold Lenz upped his average to .317 to rank behind Myers. The versatile shortstop leads the team in extra base hits, collecting five doubles and one triple.

After the busy week end at Topeka, the Indians will return home for a double-header with South Dakota University at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The Monday night double-header will be a tune-up for the Wesleyan Tournament which starts Thursday at Lincoln. The top teams from the state will be in action.

The tourney winner will most likely be tabbed the best team in the state.

The proposed merger with the University of Nebraska, has forced many faculty members to seek other employment.

Recently the athletic department announced that they also have a staff member departing.

Assistant football coach Ken Fischer, who has served in that capacity for seven years, is leaving OU to assume a similar post at Hiram Scott in Scottsbluff, Nebraska.

Coach Fischer is a 1950 graduate of Nebraska University where he played as a running back. He also has three football brothers; Pat is a defensive back for the St. Louis Cardinals; Cletus, an assistant coach at NU; and Rex, a prominent doctor.

It's evident that with the Fischer name well known in Nebraska sports circles he will be a definite drawing card in any recruiting program.

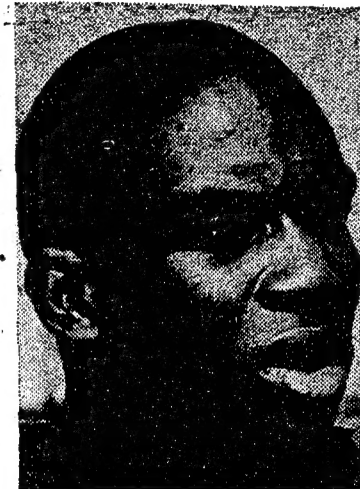

It makes one wonder if Hiram Scott, who beat OU last fall 13-7, is hoping to recruit possible local talent for Hiram Scott.

Fischer said, "I hope I can recruit for them, just where I don't know."

Watch Young Sayers

Ron Sayers ... 205

In the annual intra-squad spring football game tonight one individual you should keep your eye on is back Ron Sayers.

Ron is the younger brother of Gale Sayers, the Kansas All-American and All-Pro halfback for the Chicago Bears; and Roger Sayers the OU and Olympic sprinter.

Gale has been tutoring Ron and with added weight, more speed and experience he should be watched. No doubt a few pro scouts will be taking a long look at him in the near future as will his fall opponents.

Dodd Signs With Chiefs

By Rudy Smith

It's not every day that an athlete has a grade school dream turn into a reality.

If you are an aggressive and determined OU footballer with size, speed and a little luck you may have a dream of playing professional football turn into a reality.

In 1964, Jack Petersen, a defensive tackle signed with Green Bay Packers of the NFL and remained until the last squad cut and later declined an offer from the Minnesota Vikings.

Last year little All-American Gerald Allen signed with the Baltimore Colts as a running back and end.

Jimmy Jones was drafted by the New York Jets and after being placed on waivers was signed by the Pittsburg Steelers.

Recently fullback Bill Dodd signed a pro contract with the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL. "Only because it's closer to home and they offered a cash bonus which swayed me," said Dodd.

"I felt that I wasn't going to get drafted since I had a poor year and was plagued by injuries," said Bill.

Then it happened: Dallas, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, Denver, Washington, San Francisco, New York, Baltimore and San Diego teams sent letters and called requesting Bill's services.

"I got my first feelers while playing freshman ball at Wyoming and that's when the coach said I should think about playing pro-football," commented Dodd, an elementary education practice teacher at Howard Kennedy school.

Bill is a 1963 graduate of Central High where he was

Dodd ... Pro

team captain and Homecoming King.

He also ran in the Central track team and was timed on numerous occasions for the hundred-yard dash at :10.2.

Before transferring to OU at the conclusion of his sophomore year he alternated at tailback on the Wyoming varsity.

He was second only to Allen in rushing his junior year at OU and according to assistant coach Ken Fischer, he had a good attitude and worked real hard before he got hurt.

"My playing weight my junior year was 215 and my senior year 225 lb. Now, my best playing weight is between 210 and 215 and I always play to win," said Dodd in a serious tone.

"Bill's best capabilities at this time is on offense as a running back or fullback," said football coach Al Caniglia.

"The scouts like Bill's size and strength and they feel he has potential to become a good pro ball player. But he will have to concentrate on running a little lower. As far as his blocking is concerned he does a good job of that," said Caniglia.

"If he reports to camp in good physical shape he has a good chance of making the team and that's a compliment to any ball player," said Coach Caniglia.

43 Interviewed

Fifty-three students are competing next Wednesday for 12 Student Council seats. Last Friday, 43 candidates came in the Gateway office to be interviewed. Those not interviewed are marked by an asterisk in the list of candidates on page 7.

Three of the four questions asked each candidate are:

1. Currently, what do you feel is the role of the Student Council?

2. What are the needs of the student body?

3. Do you believe the Student Council is fulfilling these needs? If not, what changes, specifically, would you advise?

The candidates' response to each question is numbered accordingly. Responses were condensed.

13 Seniors Compete

Lonnie Bernth

21, Education

1. "My feeling now, is that the Student Council should be the representative voice of the student body. As a council, it should be more than a mediation board between administration and the students. It must present an accurate picture of student needs and then present and carry out solutions.

2. "The needs of the student body are as varied as the number of students. What I consider the greatest need is a central rallying point of support and interest in all school activities.

3. "I feel we must have a more unified effort on behalf of the independents and Greeks to solve our problems.

Marlin Briscoe

21, Education

1. "The role of the Council is "to represent the entire student body instead of a minority, and to work with the faculty and administration for the improvement of our university.

2. "One of the needs is "to provide some means of trying to evaporate some of the standing social prejudices that exist on campus. In other words, effective leadership so the unity on campus will be more closely knitted.

3. "Student Council representatives should be elected on a proportionate basis as to insure better representation.

Beverly Grasso

20, Liberal Arts

1. "What the role is and what the role should be are two different things. I hope the future role will carry definite administrative powers.

2. "Presently the primary need is to have a stronger intermediary between faculty and students.

3. "Council's hands are tied by the administration. It is not council which needs specific changes, but the role of the faculty in administering student government.

Jerry Ferguson

23, Business Adm.

1. "The Council's main concern, now, is social legislation. The new Student Center committees which Mr. Fred Ray has set up should provide the social atmosphere for the student.

2. "Perhaps the basic need of an individual is a chance to express himself and to participate. The student wants a chance to express himself in an environment which is for his benefit.

3. "The council isn't fulfilling this need but it is not their fault. They are limited in administering their ideas.

Kathy Hurley

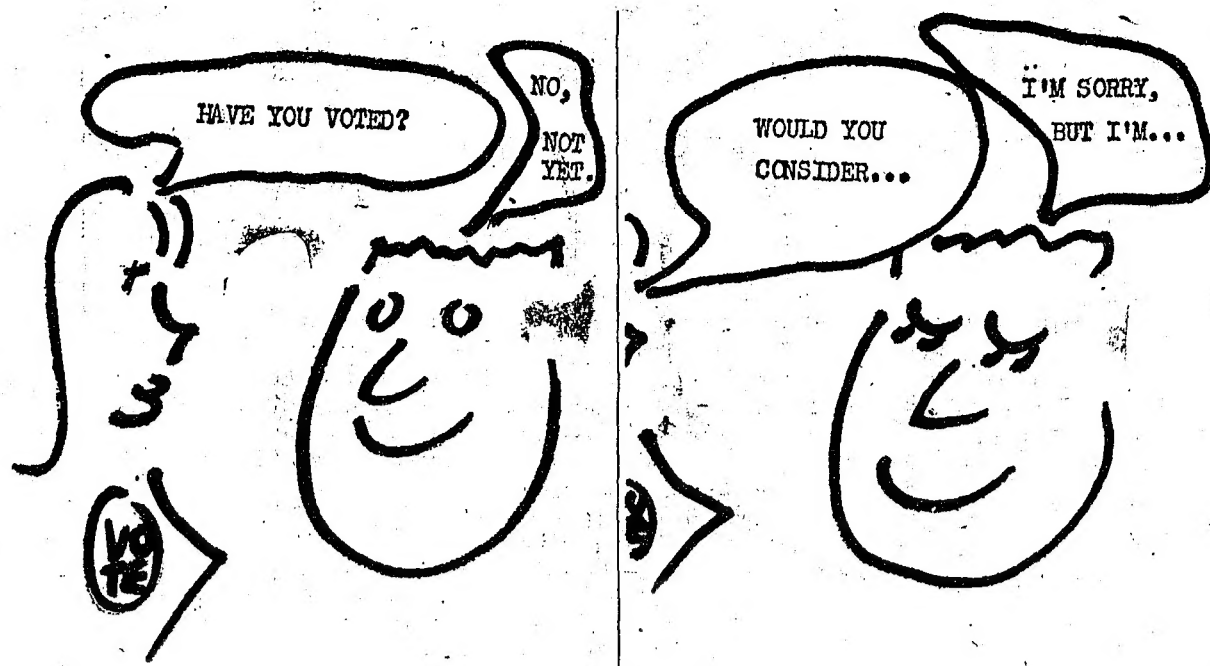

20, Education

1. "Currently, it is a social organization that sponsors dances and arranges activities."

2. Miss Hurley provided a list of four needs:

- To have a voice in the rules that are imposed on them (the student body);
- To lower tuition;
- To wear what they want;
- To have activities that all students can participate in.

3. "I believe that the Student Council is beginning this year to meet these needs. Yet, in comparison to other colleges our Student Council is not being heard by the administration."

Carole J. Grube

20, Education

1. "At the present time, I feel that the council has only a partial voice in legislating some of the University policies that concern the student body.

2. "An improved system of communication between the administration and the students is necessary. The student's interest in the activities of their university should be encouraged by giving them more voice in establishing policies.

3. "The council has performed its duties successfully for the most part, but these duties include only those things assigned to it by the constitution written in 1939. The council is not meeting the needs of today's students.

Mary E. Jacobi

22, Continuing Studies

1. The Student Council is "an organization that half-heartedly supports the opinion of the student body."

2. Miss Jacobi also provides a list of student body needs.

- Better representation in administrative affairs.
- The support of the Student Council as an organized student government, and
- It seems the student body "has suddenly developed growing pains and they'll need leaders to help carry them out."

3. "No, I would demand student representation on administrative boards, and faculty boards.

Larry Lindberg

21, Liberal Arts

1. "With the pending merger, I feel that the council has an obligation to remain the student body's representative in campus affairs.

2. "I think that there is a greater need for dialogue between the student body and the council.

3. "I don't think that there is an effective channel of communication open to the student.

Betty McGinnis

20, Education

1. "At the present time, the Student Council is a social planning board.

2. "The student body needs to be treated more like responsible college students instead of like high school students.

3. "No, a solution could be to have the Student Center Groups take over all social planning."

Richard Osterhaus

22, Education

1. "The Student Council is too much involved with entertainment instead of government.

2. "OU students need to stand up for their rights.

3. "There must be some vigorous legislation to change the small petty rules which have passed and which hinder the student.

George E. Ryck

22, Engineering

1. Ryck has outlined a series of roles the council should fill: "The council should be a legislative body for the University student, should correlate the activities of the various groups on campus, and to work with the NU Student Senate after the merger."

2. The students "need someone to lead them, not to plan dances and they need cooperation between the leaders of the school."

3. "I would like to see a continuing improvement of the council.

Brenda Lee Williams

Brenda Williams

20, Liberal Arts

1. "The Student Council, as the sole elected student organization at OU, is responsible for representing the student body in making official decisions.

2. "We need better student involvement in planning social functions, improving faculty-student relations, making rules and regulations and improving communication and interest in the University.

3. "I advise a revision of the constitution, clarifying the council's power and the formation of student committees to help the elected members use their powers and expand into academic and administrative areas.

20 Junior Hopefuls

Dennis Den-Hartog

26, Liberal Arts

1. "A pawn in the hands of the administration totally unrepresentative of the student body.

2. "This is the task of the members of the student council. They should represent the students and determine their needs.

3. "No, the Student Council is unaware of the needs of the students. The Gateway could pull some opinion polls and the Council members should make their own opinion polls.

Diane Denker

20, Liberal Arts

1. "I feel the Student Council has failed to fulfill its purpose of student government. I would attribute this failure to a "need to be revised" constitution and a selection of popular rather than responsible representative.

2. "I feel the student body needs a student government representative of the whole student body whether affiliated to a certain group or not.

3. "I advise first a close examination of both the constitution and needs of the on coming merger. I also encourage sub-committees to take over the social planning, allowing the council to place its concern on legislation.

Thomas Bruce Fischer

20, Liberal Arts

1. "Its role is one of interpreting the views of the student body and representing these views as accurately as possible with respect to the Student Council legislation.

2. "The most important need is the sense of belonging to a school and participating in its functioning. — if a student body does not have this it cannot expect to be successful.

3. "Increased representation is necessary for the council to have a truly effective and accurate operation. Presently the council is limited in this capacity because of the system of representation currently in use.

Mary Ann Over

19, Education

1. "The role of the student council is not well defined.

- Need more presentation of student views.
- More interchanging of ideas between faculty and students.
- We need to unite and work together as a group, then attack the problems.

3. "Right now the student council has to plan and put on all the dances and social activities. It would be better if some of these jobs could be planned by "The Group."

Sweet Sixteen

The University of Omaha varsity debate squad has completed its tournament year by traveling to the University of Montana as Missoula last weekend. Four students participated in several events, including a new form of debate.

Cary Mills and Roger Sutton competed in the varsity debate. This was a new type which employed a 14-minute discussion round in the middle of the regular speeches. Duane Aschenbrenner, director of forensics, who judged this type of debate said, "It has a lot of merit. I think we will try it around here."

The entire squad has traveled over 15,000 miles and participated in over 16 tournaments for the year. John Wanzenried and Dennis Fus of the University have assisted the team and traveled to many of the schools.

Law 'n Force Men

The second phase of the advanced training program for police officers is taking place at Omaha U these next two weeks.

G. L. Kuchel, OU's director of law enforcement and security is directing the police program.

The object of the advance training program is to provide professional training to law enforcement officers of Nebraska in activities which utilize a great proportion of their time.

The first part of the training program was held last October.

500 Juveniles Away From Home

Paul Ackerson, OU education instructor and secretary for the Eastern Society for the Junior Academy of Sciences, and Paul Cooke, president of The Nebraska Junior Academy of Sciences Eastern Section, announced that the eleventh annual Junior Academy of Sciences Exhibit from the Eastern Nebraska section will be held tomorrow in the OU fieldhouse.

This exhibit is limited to students in the seventh through the twelfth grades. Over five hundred are expected to attend.

The paintings include 30 pieces of acrylic, oils and watercolor works. The exhibit runs through May.

He also entered two pieces of work "Thaw" and "Landscape — 67" in "Watercolor U.S.A.", a national art competition.

His painting "Thaw" won the Robert Higgs Memorial Purchase Award. He was paid $150 for his painting and it will go to the Springfield Art Museum.

Of the 600 entries in the contest only 100 are picked to share in the $6,750 in prize money. The competition was held in Springfield, Missouri.

Student Council Candidates Speak Out

James Dow

21, Liberal Arts

1. "The Student Council, as it now stands, does little but feed back to the student body policies or interests that are Greek oriented. It fails in its attempt to be a truly representative body.

2. "The student body needs a more effective voice, through a more representative Student Council. Moreover, the student body should be made more aware of the policies and decisions that govern the actions of the students."

3. James calls for alteration of the election regulations "to end any favoritism which might exist." He also wants revision of the rules governing the student body and the formation of a faculty-student senate.

Joe Hernandez

19, Liberal Arts

1. "Currently the Student Council is a social organization. This may be due to the fact that no one really bothers to bring up a problem to the attention of the council.

2. "There is a definite lack of communication between the students and the Administration. The council should represent all the students not just one or two organizations.

3. "I'm sure the council is trying to fulfill these needs. But, as Greeks, it is hard for them to give the independent point of view. I think problems and complaints should be dealt with at once.

Ed Ganey

18, Liberal Arts

1. "The Student Council is presently concerned with social legislation. Right now the activities are aimed at dances, Maie Day, etc. The students activities committees could be a big help in aiding the social atmosphere on campus.

2. "The student body wishes to participate in formulating university policy and not find out what is going on after it has been past. The students, especially the independents, feel they should be recognized.

3. "Not completely. Now they realize the interest of the unaffiliated students and I'm sure some changes will be made.

Rosemary ("Rosie") Krecek

18, Education

1. "The Student Council should arouse more interest and enthusiasm in campus activities. Not enough students take an active interest.

2. "The student body needs to have more voice in campus activities and have better representation.

3. "No, they are just proposing the ideas of 12 people. But, I feel the student body should approach the council with their suggestions.

Dennis Jorgensen

18, Education

1. "To represent the entire student body in legislative matters dealing with the administration and faculty. I advocate that all social responsibilities now belonging to the council should be transferred to the Student Activities Program Committee or a newly formed social committee.

2. "The one big need of the student body is to have developed better lines of communication between itself and the administration of this University. Included in this process is a student government which has definite channels for which legislation can pass from it to the President of the University.

3. "The Student Council has not developed as fully as possible these lines of communication. If re-elected I plan to develop direct and definite channels for this legislation.

Linda Jordan

18, Engineering and Technology

1. "The job of the Student Council must truly represent all of the students at OU.

2. "The student body needs to take a lasting interest in themselves.

3. "No. The council should have student body representatives present at all meetings so that those who wish to have a say in running the school.

Steve Nelson

19, Liberal Arts

1. "To govern the activities and rules of the student body. And to voice their opinion on the activities and rules.

2. "To have a voice in the functions of the school and the role it plays in the system it uses in its educational procedure.

3. "I feel they are trying as hard as they can to do the job they are supposed to be doing, but maybe with a louder voice they could be heard better.

Debby Rhoades

18, Elementary Education

1. "At present the Student Council is hardly more than Greek competition. There is nothing wrong with these organizations—I feel the problem lies in that they are over-glorified. The council is off to a good start in changing this image by its alteration of present election rules.

2. "I feel that the student body needs a closer communication and cooperation with the Student Council.

3. "The Student Council is not fulfilling these needs. Perhaps the council could hold more open meetings where any member of the student body would be able to attend and voice his opinion.

John Leibman

19, Liberal Arts

1. "To plan huge social affairs and events. Also, to squabble over insignificant things like dress regulations.

2. "The student body needs representation of all the students. They also need more school spirit.

3. "No. We need either a larger council or a student senate. The more people involved the better the communication.

Melissanda Olson

18, Education

1. "It is a voice of student sentiment. It should represent the students to the administration and the general public.

2. "The student body needs more understanding of the situation at OU now that the merger is eminent.

3. "The Student Council is effective, but I would like them to try and promote more school spirit at the games.

Sheryl Oman

18, Education

1. "The Student Council should be a governing body where the students can be a part of the council by representation.

2. "The basic need is a Student Council that can and will represent the whole student body. Also, more student power and more all-student activities.

3. "No. Some of the Student Council members are not working for unity among students. There should be a representative body organized to represent the student body.

Lonnie D. Schaffroth

23, Liberal Arts

1. "At the present time the Student Council is using only a small portion of its designed function.

2. "The student body needs a Student Council that represents the total population and works with the faculty and the administration for better operation.

3. "No. I believe the Student Council Constitution should be revised to delegate more authority to the council for controlling the student body.

Herb Wehner

19, Business Adm.

1. "I feel the present council is a symbol of student representation. The Student Council should represent the students in a total picture.

2. "The student body needs to be effectively represented in student affairs and policies.

3. "Not as it should be. I think the council should strive to represent the student body in a more democratic way.
